

Love in the Sea

There are three contestants left on this year's edition of Eel Bachelorette. The three are lined up, vertical, on their tails, awaiting the decision. Marvin stands nervously in the middle. To his right is an eel that looks like Johnny Depp, all in black, wearing sunglasses. To his left is an eel that looks like Sam Elliott, with silver scales and wearing a cowboy hat and a boot. Marvin is the scrawniest eel on the stage. He can barely see through his thick glasses. But when the bachelorette saunters by to look them over, Marvin is not surprised when she wraps herself around him. He remembers what his grandma eel always told him: It's the geeky eel that gets the squeeze.

